Executive Summary

PART I: GENERAL INFORMATION ABOUT THE AGENCY

The New York State Board of Regents (NYBR) has been engaged in the evaluation of quality in higher education since 1787. It is the State approval agency that authorizes the establishment of all educational institutions in the State. That function also includes the responsibility to register all of the postsecondary programs offered in New York institutions offering degrees and certificates. As the only State agency recognized by the Secretary for its institutional accrediting activities, the agency restructured its institutional accrediting activities in 2002 to clarify its role and responsibilities as an institutional accrediting agency. The institutional accreditation activities now fall under the auspices of both the NYBR and the Commissioner of Education (Board of Regents). The Board of Regents accredits degree-granting institutions that have designated it as their sole or primary accrediting agency for the purpose of establishing eligibility to participate in the Title IV, HEA programs. In this capacity, the Board of Regents currently accredits 14 institutions, all of which are located in the State of New York.

The New York State Education Department (SED), the administrative arm of the NYBRE, carries out the accreditation activities of the Board of Regents. The SED performs its duties and responsibilities under the direction of the Commissioner of Education. Within the SED, the Deputy Commissioner for Higher Education develops and implements the institutional accrediting activities.

Recognition History

The New York Board of Regents appeared on the initial list of recognized accrediting agencies in 1952, and has received continuous recognition since that time. In 2008, the agency notified the Secretary of the expansion of its scope to include distance education. The National Advisory Committee on Institutional Quality and Integrity (NACIQI) last reviewed the agency’s petition for renewal of recognition at the Fall 2012 meeting. The agency was requested to submit a compliance report in 2014. The subject of this report is in regards to the agency's petition for re-recognition. There have been no complaints submitted during this recognition period.

PART II: SUMMARY OF FINDINGS

602.20 Enforcement of standards
(a) If the agency's review of an institution or program under any standard indicates that the institution or program is not in compliance with that standard, the agency must—

(1) Immediately initiate adverse action against the institution or program; or

(2) Require the institution or program to take appropriate action to bring itself into compliance with the agency's standards within a time period that must not exceed—

(i) Twelve months, if the program, or the longest program offered by the institution, is less than one year in length;

(ii) Eighteen months, if the program, or the longest program offered by the institution, is at least one year, but less than two years, in length; or

(iii) Two years, if the program, or the longest program offered by the institution, is at least two years in length.

Subpart 4-1 of the Regents Rules informs accredited institutions of the maximum time allowed to come into compliance with its standards which are in accordance with this criterion. The agency provided an example of probation action (page 1) and a letter for denial (page 106). It appears though that the timeframes provided prior to the final denial letter include an administrative extension given by the agency until the convening of the next Board of Regents meeting. This meeting was held 4 months beyond the two year time period that was allowed to demonstrate compliance.

While the agency has a policy for an extension for good cause under Section 2, the policy is not specific to define administrative extension. For considerations of agency limitations such as state budgets which could affect the occurrence of meeting times, it would be probable that this meeting was the first available opportunity for the agency to convene to discuss this institution. However, the good cause extension definition as it currently exists in the agency's standards do not explain or define administrative extension. The agency must amend its standards to be explicit in its use of administrative extension, and ensure that the enforcement timelines required by this criterion are not exceeded.

(b) If the institution or program does not bring itself into compliance within the specified period, the agency must take immediate adverse action unless the agency, for good cause, extends the period for achieving compliance.

Subpart 4-1 of the Regents Rules informs accredited institutions of the maximum time allowed to come into compliance with its standards which are in accordance with this criterion. The agency provided an example of probation action, an administrative extension for collection of additional information, and a letter for denial (page 106). The administrative extension afforded this agency does not appear to be consistent with Section 2 of the agency's policies for awarding and extension for good cause.

Analyst Remarks to Response:
In response to the draft analysis, the agency has provided an example that was based on an administrative extension, not an extension for good cause. The agency must provide a documentation demonstrating that it has executed its extension for good cause standard. If the agency has not done this, it must explain that this has not occurred.
